

Hello!

Each day in Rivers & Revolutions offers something new — field trips, outdoor adventures, guest speakers, group projects, and seminars — creating an exciting, dynamic experience. Yet, as you settle into the program, you begin to notice the rhythms and routines that help keep everyone grounded.

Each semester focuses on three central themes, organized into three units of study: Rivers, Revolutions, and Journeys. Time in the classroom often supports learning we do in the field, so that once we are in a location that is rich with meaning and learning, we are ready to be engaged. Below are photos from each unit to give you a glimpse into what we do!

Feel free to drop by and talk to RR teachers if you have questions.

Unit 1: Rivers

How can you understand a river, a place, or a community from multiple perspectives?

Unit 2: Revolutions

How can we create a revolutionarily good life — for ourselves and for everyone?

Unit 3: Journey's

How do you navigate your own journey? And once you've found your path, what will you do about it?
